Learn more about consumer rights under the CPA

- Can cancel certain agreements within 10 days (the "cooling-off period").
- Unless consumers agree to a later delivery date, a refund of a product or service should be provided within 30 days.
- If the business was unfair, (e.g: using out-dated and/or false information to see a product or price gouging), can cancel the contract within a year and get a full refund.
- Complain against your business to the Ministry of Public and Business Service Delivery.
- Refer to the Consumer Protection Act legislation to learn more about these consumer rights.

CONSUMER PROTECTION ONTARIO

We hope this overview of consumer protection laws helped you gain an understanding of how to sell your goods and services to customers. Reach out if you have any questions.

Contact us

Ontario.ca/BusinessCompliance

CPOBusinessEducation@Ontario.ca

1-800-889-9768
TTY: 1-877-666-6545

CONSUMER PROTECTION ONTARIO

Understanding Ontario's Consumer Protection Act, 2002

For business owners and operators

Ontario

What is Consumer Protection Ontario and how does it support businesses and consumers?

Consumer Protection Ontario promotes consumer rights, assists businesses in meeting their obligations, and takes necessary compliance and enforcement action to ensure a fair marketplace. We manage the Consumer Protection Act, among other consumer protection laws.

Business sectors covered by the CPA include, but are not limited to:

- auto body repair and auto repair
- door-to-door sales, such as for heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) equipment
- home furnishings
- home renovation, maintenance and roofing
- moving services

What are the statutory obligations of businesses under the CPA?

- If selling products or services over $50 or entering into specific transactions, provide a written contract.
- Charge no more than 10% the estimated price unless the consumer agrees in writing.
- Avoid unfair practices, such as price gouging and inaccurate, misleading, or deceptive representation.

Types of contracts:

- Direct
  (e.g.: sold at the person's home)
- Future performance
  (e.g.: with delivery date in future)
- Internet
- Remote
  (e.g.: sold over the phone or mail)
- Personal development services
  (e.g.: gym membership)